SPRING BULB SHOW STARTS FRIDAY AT NILES

DEMS. NAME RUSCHIN TO HEAD CLUB

Louis Ruschin of Newark was elected president of the Washington Township Democratic club at its meeting early this week in the Parish hall at Centerville.

Ruschin, an outstanding Democrat and for years one of Newark's most active citizens, succeeds Manuel Lewis who resigned the position recently after becoming postmaster at Centerville. At this week's meeting, members of the club gave Lewis a rising vote of thanks for his work for the party organization.

Other officers elected were George Kamaras, vice president; Rosaline Egan, secretary; Cecilia Janeiro, assistant secretary; John Dutra, treasurer, and Frank Vargas, sergeant-at-arms.

Well over thirty persons attended the session and six new members signed the roll, which officers say, carries over 100 names.

Ruschin spoke briefly on the Roosevelt administration. He pointed out that the two primary problems since the depression have been to increase the number of jobs and to feed the jobless. 'These things are necessary," he declared. "If the Republicans were in power now, they would have to do them. Why criticise our present president for doing them?"

T. J. Power, Irvington attorney, pioneer Democrat and honorary president of the club, urged the members to see that all Democrats are registered prior to primary time. He forecast a fight between the Roosevelt forces and the Sinclair forces in the party primaries.

Vargas spoke in support of the administration from the standpoint of organized labor, saying that labor legislation has added tremendous support to Roosevelt.

Lewis, retiring president, commented briefly on the administration farm program and its political aspects. He forecast a heavy farmer support at the next election.

Other officers an members spoke briefly.

Ruschin adiourned the meeting after the members voted to pay outstanding bills.

Next meeting will be April 6. At that time standing committeemen will be appointed.

ALVARADO TO IMPROVE FIRE FIGHTING DISTRICT

ALVARADO — The Alvarado Chamber of Commerce has started a movement to improve the efficiency of its fire district. The organization has appealed to members of the fire commission for an investigation into ways for giving better protection. Commissioners who will take the matter up are John Ralph, George P. Hellwig, O. J. Emery, F. C. Harvey and H. M. Springer.

Aunt Admits Beating Child

AUNT ADMITS ....

ALVARADO—Rosie Bell, 6, is in a serious condition at an Oakland hospital this week and her aunt, Celia Morino, of Alvarado, is being held for investigation as the result of a beating the child is alleged to have suffered early this week.

The child has been living with her aunt since her father deserted her mother and her four brothers and sisters in Mina, Nevada.

Although the child has never started to school, Principal J. C. Wasley investigated when neighbors told him of the alleged beating. He found the little girl suffering from severe wounds on the face and body. The aunt admitted beating Rose because the child is alleged to have told tales on her to Jose Morino with whom she lives. She said that she beat the girl until her face turned dark. Then she tried to remove the bruise marks by washing the face with hot water and salt until the child's skin peeled off.

TOWNSHIP WINES TO BE DISPLAYED

Washington township wine producers will display their vintage in the Eleventh Annual Food show that opens in the Oakland Municipal Auditorium March 28 for a week's run.

The wine display will be installed and maintained by the Alameda County Development Commission acting for the Board of Supervisors.

Listed as exhibitors from Washington township are the Darrow Winery, Mission San Jose; Rierh Winery, Irvington, and Castlewood Winery, Centerville.

Cut flowers and plants will also be featured in the Alameda County display according to Supervisor Ralph V. Richmond of Niles.

RAIN HANDICAPS SPORT SCHEDULE

Rain has spoiled the athletic schedule of Washington Union High school thus far this season, says Jess Regli, coach. The baseball games slated with Los Gatos and Santa Clara failed to go through and the schedule is too tight to permit playing them at a later date.

A tough game is slated with Alameda for Friday. If the local team wins, it will be a real achievement, according to Regli. Alameda always has about the toughest team in the league. Although the local team beat Alameda last year, most of last year's men are gone now.

Regli admits his pitching staff is weak but he has some good hitters.

Only other high school athletic event this week is the interclass field meet today.

Junior Chamber Plans Niles Festival In May

NILES—The Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce will present a May festival this year. At the organization's meeting this week, members voted for the proposal. The tentative program calls for fireworks displays on the hill near the big sign, a parade, street dancing and possibly booths.

A committee comprising Sam Kerns and William Helm will visit the Senior Chamber of Commerce at its regular meeting Monday to discuss the plans with that group.

As explained by Lawrence Pine, committeeman in charge of the plans, the festival will be the first sueh event in this end of the county this season.

Effort will be made to attract parade floats from Pleasanton, Livenmore and Centerville as advertisements for their seasonal celebrations which come later.

TILLEY TO SEEK ANNEXATION FOR SUNOL DISTRICT

CENTERVILLE — A. L. Tilley, leader of the group of Sunol parents who want their children to attend Washington Union High school, appeared Tuesday night before the regular meeting of the Washington board to ask aid in securing transportation.

Members of the board told Tilley that while the school was glad to receive Sunol students, it did not want to take any initiative in bringing about a change that would conflict with the rights of Amador valley High school in Pleasanton. The Pleasanton school draws a number of Sunol students.

The Washington Union board also told Tilley that under state law, a high school has a right to fill a nearby grammar school district for the difference in cost between the state money it receives per pupil and the actual cost of educating the pupils from the grammar school district. The board declared that, while it had not billed the Sunol district in the past for such services, it would act under the terms of the law next year.

Tilley declared that he would take the matter of annexation of the Sunol district with the Washington Union district up with county officials soon. He indicated that he and his friends would seek annexation as the means to obtain Washington Hi benefits for their children.

TEN THOUSAND WILL SEE DISPLAY, LISTEN TO NOTED SPEAKERS

NILES—Ten thousand visitors are expected to attend the fifth annual outdoor spring bulb show, which starts tomorrow Friday, March 5, on the grounds of the California Nursery Company. The show will continue through Sunday, April 5, inclusive. Daffodils will be at their best the first two weeks of the show, while tulips will be blooming from Mar. 22 to Apr. 5.

This yearly event has attracted growing attention from garden lovers. Visitors are coming from all over the state as far south as Santa Monica. Invitations to garden clubs in various towns in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys have been accepted, and parties will arrive almost daily throughout the show.

Over 100,000 bulbs are planted on the grounds embracing about 400 varieties, many of them new and rare.

Educational Program

In place of the customary entertainment by Spanish singers and dancers, an educational program has been prepared. Noted speakers will appear—all experts in their several specialties. Saturdays and Sundays will be the big days for crowds. The speakers' program follows:

Men's Clubs Increase

Only in the last ten years has interest in bulb planting developed to a point where men are taking a large part in gardening. Formerly interest in growing flowers was considered purely femine, so far as amateurs were concerned. Now many garden clubs are exclusively for men. The Oakland Business Men's Garden club is notable.

The nursery company has scoured the world for exotic specimens, with Chile, South Africa and Australia represented by unique specimens.

Jan de Graaff who speaks on March 28, is representative of a Holland family whose name has been associated with the bulb industry since 1723. When the United States forbade import of bulbs by establishing a quarantine a number of years ago, a number of Holland specialists established bulb farms in the United States—among them Mr. de Graaff, who is located at Sandy, twelve miles east of Portland, Oregon.

Benefit For Babies

The Toyon Branch Baby Hospital and the Country Club of Washington Township will sponsor sales jointly with the nursery, with members' daughters of high school age doing the selling. The clubs will get a percentage of sales of cut flowers and potted plants at the week-ends.

Prof. Sydney B. Mitchell, one of the speakers, is author of "From a Sunset Garden" and "Gardening in California."

Mrs. George Mathiesen, Mrs. Mable Fitzgerald, Mrs. J. C. Shinn, and Mrs. J. M. Williamson representing the Garden Committee of the Country club and Mrs. Barton I Webb, representing the Dramatic group, met with Mrs. J. R. Whipple on Saturday to consider a proposed proect for raising the quota of their sections toward the payment of the stage debt. The matter of co-operating with the Children's Hospital in the Spring Bulb Show, will be taken up by both committees.

At Forty Cornaro Learned Gentle Art of Growing Old

History's outstanding example of the value of hygienic living is Luigi Cornaro, whose serious sickness when he was forty years of age directed his attention to regulating his habits of life. Instead of dying before fifty, as a result of what was considered starvation diet, he lived to be one hundred.

In his eighty-fourth year he wrote his celebrated book showing how he had achieved health, high spirits and an unfailing interest in the life of his age.

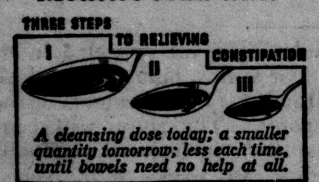
There to Use

Thomas Carlyle said that a university was merely a collection of good books.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:



A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Tall Tales

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Beating the Drouth

IT WAS the drouth year of 1934. Day after day the sun blazed down from a cloudless sky. Scorching winds blew across the western plains. Wells went dry and rivers became mere trickles.

Down in Oklahoma, Al Gotlieb, owner of the J-R ranch, looked at his herd of 499 prime strees. They were growing thinner every day because they would not eat the brown, dry grass. Unless he could fatten them he was ruined.

One day a peddler stopped at the ranch house. "Better buy a pair of these green goggles to protect your eyes from the glare of the sun," he said. The ranchman took one look through them, then exclaimed, "How soon can you get me 498 more pairs?"

A week later the 498 pairs arrived. The ranchman fitted them on his steers. They saw broad fields of rich, green grass and began to graze eagerly. But when it came time to drink from the river they refused. Animal instinct told them that green water is often poisonous. There was only one thing to do and the ranchman did it.

A telegram brought 499 more pairs of goggles—only this time the lenses in them were blue.

Of course, it was a lot of trouble to change the goggles—first green, then blue, then green, then blue, etc.—on 499 steers every day. But that fall the J-R steers topped the Kansas City market because they were in such prime condition.

Grand Fishin' in Grand Canyon

THROUGH the Grand Canyon in Arizona flows the Colorado river. Since "Colorado" is Spanish for "red" its water should be that color, but mostly it's a turbid, yellow stream. Ask Jim Hankins, ex-prospector, ex-cowboy and now a tourists guide, if there are any fish in the stream and he will say:

"Sure, there's fish there, but I 'low I'm about the only man in Arizony who knows how to ketch them fish. They're right peculiar, same as everything else down in this country. One funny thing about 'em is that they always swim backwards.

"Why? So's to keep the mud from gettin' in their eyes. An' it's jest because o' that fact that I kin ketch 'em. Them fish is all plumb crazy over eatin' tobacco. So when I am to go fishin' I take me a club and a ten-cent plug o' eatin' tobacco.

"Then I go down to the bottom of the canyon and I pick me out a nice shoal place where I can see the fish as they come swimmin' upstream, tail first. Then I take my pocket-knife and I cut the plug up in little bits. I made out in the stream a little ways and spread the bait on the top of the water.

"Well, sir, them fish grab it and go down to the bottom and start chewin'. Purty soon they get a hankerin' to spit. Not even a fish can spit under water, so when they come up to the top to spit I jest haul off with my club and hit 'em over the heads. And thet's all there is to it."

How to Catch a Whiffenpoof

VISITORS to Florida are familiar with the whiffenpoof which is found in nearly all the lakes in that state. They can recognize it easily because it looks like a grampus, only it has pink feathers. Not all of them know how to catch one but Jack Worthington of the Lake Wales Highlander says this is the proper way:

The whiffenpoof is very fond of peanuts, so to catch one it is necessary to provide yourself with a bag of peanuts first, then a piece of rope, a pail of mortar, a rowboat and a short piece of 2 by 4. Wait until a good windy day is kicking up the waves on the lake and then go out after the whiffenpoof.

Row out into the lake and wait until a big wave comes along. Lasso it with the piece of rope, pull it alongside and tie it firmly to the boat. Then prop the wave up with the 2 by 4 and tie the bag of peanuts to the 2 by 4. Place the pail of mortar on top of the wave and then sit down and wait patiently.

In a little while the whiffenpoof will smell the peanuts and will rush up for them. As he grabs the sack he will pull the 2 by 4 out from under the wave. The wave falls and spills the pail of mortar all over him. Then he dies of "mortarification" and you have your whiffenpoof.

Lost Books

The number of "biblical" writings that perished must be very considerable, indeed. In the Bible itself there is mention of the lost "Book of the Wars of Jehovah," the "Book of the History of Solomon," histories by Samuel, Nathan the Prophet and Gad the Seer, annals of the Kings of Judah and Israel, with many other allusions to productions, great and small, of which there is no living trace now. Above all, perhaps twice mentioned in the Bible, the so-called "Book of Jasher."

Spring Hat Bright Spot on Horizon

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BUY yourself a new spring hat and turn the dirge of winter into a joyous spring song. Bright spots on the horizon are the fashion "firsts" now showing in millinery previews. Which is not figuratively speaking but literally true, for the new hats are going in for color in a big way.

It is to smile at the wee size of many of them. Not much larger than your hand, are early arrivals from Paris. Go hat hunting and prove it for yourself. The less the hat the more the chic, so designers are telling us. How to anchor these diminutive yet eye-filling bits of millinery on the head at just the most fetching tilt, and tilt, aye, that's the trick. Ask your milliner. It takes experience to acquire the knack, we admit.

But cheer up. Come veils, to the rescue! They tone up a hat no matter how diminutive and make it look "fit." Veils in countless number adorn the new hats. It is a frolicsome mood they are in, flying every which way, sometimes pretending they are veils when they are really trimming. They make pretty headgear look prettier to the point of fascination.

Flowers, too! Which is important news. To be sure there have been rumors and rumors of flowers, but this time milliners declare they are a sure thing. It is not only that "flowers is flowers" on the new hats, but really and truly news about them is that novel positioning—perky bouquets dropped atop crowns or slanted athwart forehead lines at dashing incline or posing on bandeaux or standing at attention at the front, thus the new flower treatments repeat and repeat.

While we started out telling of the tininess of some of the new hats, please do not conclude that every new spring model has been reduced to postage stamp size. On the contrary some of the smartest numbers on the style program have brims. Shallow-crowned sailors are all the go, especially the Breton types which are shown in felt or stitched silk, and the latest swagger note is the Breton made of gay patent leather. Then, too, the hat with a visor made of silk, quilted or stitched, is very popular. Young girls are charmed with the idea of the new "Rose of the Ranch" hat with its wide round rolled-up brim and that which captures fancy most of all, its chin strap of fancy cord. Also in this class is the new Argentine type which likewise boasts a chin strap. As to the new swagger soft mannish felts, their vogue is assured.

We are following up our statement about hats of Lilliputian size by including two such in the accompanying illustration. To the right in group is a Paris model which goes to verify this new trend. It is a toque of dotted grosgrain trimmed at the back with a feather and a veil which is not a veil. However, this bow of open mesh conveys an important message of veiling tied in bows and we might add matching bows at the throat are cited in fashion reports. To the left is another wee toque as fashion decrees for spring. A flange of geraniums and the inevitable little veil do the trimming act.

The off-the-face hat above proclaims the existing flair of gay color. It is a bright Chinese red straw. Band and bow are of black belting ribbon. The print gown is black and white.

A very smart shallow navy straw Breton concludes the group. The bouquet atop the crown and the inset about the headline are made of multi-colored leather.

DINNER JACKET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Wear a dinner jacket with your slim-skirted formal frock if you would look up-to-the-instant good style. White cotton pique is considered ever so smart for the dinner jacket. Indeed, these white washable jackets are proving quite the fad of the immediate moment. A white cotton pique dinner jacket, flared at the hips, adds a tailored note to a printed silk crepe frock as here shown. The dress has splashy flowers of red and blue on white with a decolletage cut high in front and low in back.

Blouses Feminize Suits

Soft blouses, frilly scarfs and other extremely feminine looking accessories are important with the new strictly tailored suits. If you have chosen a severe suit of men's wear flannel or worsted, do dress it up with a ruffled blouse, chiffon scarf and gay boutonniere of loose, feathery flowers.

CHINESE MODE SEEN IN PARIS FASHIONS

China put an oriental sign on the new spring mode shown in 1936 fashion displays.

Chinese lacquer red appeared in trimmings, Chinese motifs marked belt buckles and Chinese figures were stamped on prints.

Many black afternoon frocks were designed along simple, high-necked lines, suggestive of oriental suavity. Some black dinner frocks were topped by knee-length coats of flower printed black cire silk, whose cut showed Chinese inspiration.

A slender silhouette, high neckline and accented shoulderline, marked by big topped sleeves gathered into the armhole, distinguish the Paris profile shown so far.

Waists are normal and busts are definitely outlined.

Smartest Black Costumes Touched With Vivid Colors

Bright touches either as trimming or in the way of accessories are dramatizing the season's smartest black costumes. Perhaps it will be embroidery done in vivid colored yarn or a row of striking red buttons or inset of red patent leather. As to accessories the most striking item is the new gloves which are being shown in high colors including red, green, dubonnet and the natural chamois shade is especially sponsored by smart Parisiennes.

New Trend Is Exhibited in Double-Date Fashions

A simple gown with a broken sleeve line and a draped scarf which can be arranged to cover a low-cut back expresses the latest trend in double-date fashions. It is becoming more popular than the sleeveless gown and coatee.

This dress is cozy for dinner when the scarf is looped at the neck and hangs behind. For dancing the scarf is rearranged and draped about the waist to reveal the low-cut back.

Little Gray Lamb

Gray is an extremely smart fur this year. Gray Persian lamb, gray kid and gray caracul lamb have been used in many of the most elegant coats.

A Matter of Business

By DAPHNE A. McVICKER

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"WHEW," Lenore panted as her high heels came to rest from clattering down the stairs. She smiled up at the tall broad shouldered youth who was leaning impatiently against the letters, Employees' Entrance. "Wotta life. If I didn't have a new red coat to look forward to and that house party Saturday night, I think I'd try out our new front fourth story window."

She pushed a coaxing hand against the man's shoulder. "I know you hate window shopping, Gary. But just one more look at the coat?"

It was red. The deep, soft crimson of the inside of a flame in a burning log. It had a tall upstanding collar of gray fur that lapped back into a series of attractive curves. Gary could see the effect of a small head nestled into that fur. A head as sleek and black as the wing of a bird. The very head, in fact, that was pressing its forehead against the pane.

"I can just do it Saturday with my discount," Lenore gloated. "And then you'll have the most beu-cheous girl at the house party, my lad."

"I always have the most beucheous girl anywhere," Gary said absently. Lenore's lips parted and she looked up at him. Was he—was he at last going to say words that she had waited overlong to hear?

"What a job! Word had gone out about our big sale and I had to interview the prize class graduated from the imbecile asylum. Who would be an employment manager? I asked one old man the regular question: How far did you go in school? And he said 'Five miles.'"

Gary's laugh was troubled. "But doesn't it get you?" he asked. "Don't you fall for their hard luck stories?"

She laughed. "Old Sir Soft Heart," she said. "I honestly believe you worry about my willingness to turn people down for jobs, Gary. As if I could help it. It's the store's doing, not mine."

Gary thought for a long time. Then he reached for the telephone and presently his Cousin Anne was answering. "I think it would be great sport, Gary. Of course I'll try it for you."

On Friday evening two people, miles apart across the city, sat writing letters. One chewed on the stem of a pipe and scowled as he set down sentences. One ruffled sleek black hair into criss-cross points and wiped angrily at a tear blotch or two that fell.

Gary got his mail early at his office. He looked unbelievingly at the letter from Lenore. So sorry. Some unexpected visitors from out of town. She must spend the week-end with them. She wouldn't be able to go to the house party.

Then the telephone rang. Anne's voice wailed in his ear.

"Such a mess!" she scolded. "Mother's furious. You see I gave the right address. I couldn't think of any other. I never can think things up offhand."

Gary raced down the steps four at a time. The mail wouldn't have been delivered yet at Lenore's apartment. He could wait outside for the letter carrier. And he had an errand to do first.

He was carrying a large pasteboard box when he encountered Lenore's postman and assured him that he would carry up Lenore's mail. The postman was glad to avoid a climb up steep steps. He handed it to Gary, and Gary with a sigh of relief was tearing up a letter—

"May I ask," an icy voice said, "if you know that that's a penitentiary offense?"

"Oh, hello, Lenore," he stammered. And then feebly, "It wasn't a nice letter. You wouldn't want that old letter."

"Give me my letter."

"No," he said as they entered the hall. "B—but—" He ripped at the strings of the box and took out something red as the embers of a dying fire, edged by the gray of its ashes.

"My coat—"

"Oh, Lenore, darling! I've been wondering what on earth to tell you—and I have an inspiration. I'll tell you the truth. You remember the blond nitwit who interviewed you for a job yesterday? The one with the hard luck story. She was my Cousin Anne—and I thought if you turned her down after that story, you had a heart of flint and I couldn't take you to the house party—and marry you—and everything. And you did turn her down and I wrote to break the date."

"You did—"

"But then Anne told me you sent a big basket and a check out to her house. My aunt was furious. And you went without the coat. And I'm Sir Soft Head, darling, not Soft Heart, because I just began to realize that softness in business with your employer's money and softness outside are two entirely different things. Button the coat, will you, dear?"

Lenore's dimples were enchanting. After all, he had never known that almost all her money went for charity. Hence no coat for so long. She slipped into the red enchantment.

"Rise, Sir Soft Heart," she said. "Rise—and be forgiven."

Two Separate Powers—One to Produce, One to Advertise

The value to the world of any natural gift or talent depends on two separate powers—that of producing excellent work and that of bringing it to the notice of those who can appreciate and use it. Very few persons unite in themselves these two capabilities. It is a rare thing to find a man or a woman possessing a very marked talent in some one department, and also the tact, the judgment, the knowledge of the world needful to make the most and the best of it.

Many indeed have a limited share of each, and may to that degree be successful in their pursuits; but the highest and finest abilities in production usually so fully absorb the performer that he has neither ability nor inclination to push them into public notice. Thus it often happens that special excellence is hidden from the world, and society is deprived of its beneficial results.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Mrs. T. J. Power Tells Tamale Loaf Recipes

IRVINGTON—Mrs. T. J. Power has been trying out tamale recipes and this week she contributes a couple which she says are well worth while. The two following recipes are for "tamale pie." One contains meat, the other does not. The loaf with meat in it follows:

Ingredients

1½ pounds ground beef or veal
½ pound green pepper, chopped
½ chopped onion.
No. 2 can corn
No. 2 can tomatoes
1 cup corn meal
1 cup milk
1 small can ripe olives
1 bottle green olives
1 teaspoon salt.

Brown meat, pepper and onion in pan over slow fire. Remove from pan and add other ingredients. Cook for 10 minutes stirring constantly, then place in loaf pan and cook for 45 minutes or until loaf is firm, in medium slow oven.

The recipe for plain tamale loaf is both quicker and more economical:

Ingredients

2 cans tamales
1 can corn
1 pound necktie macaroni.

Cook macaroni as usual in salted water and drain. Mix corn and tamales well and then fill casserol with first a layer of macaroni, then a layer of tamale, again a layer of macaroni and so on. Cover top with grated cheese. Cook for 40 minutes in a slow oven.

Niles Junior Chamber To Entertain Visitors

NILES — Plans are speeding ahead for the entertainment of the Alameda County Junior Chambers of Commerce at the meeting to be held at Niles on April 16, William Cavanaugh reported at the Niles Junior Chamber meeting this week.

The affair will be held at the Belvoir hotel and an elaborate entertainment is being planned for the visiting delegates. Cavanaugh stresses the fact that members wishing to attend must make reservations because the dining room will seat only 60 persons. Bartenders named are Barney Biocci, Tony Silva and Milton Fournier.

Reports on the chamber's pre-Lenten dance and on club finances this week showed a substantial profit and more than $175 in the general fund.

Joe Vivieros reported that arrangements have been completed for occupancy of the club's headquarters soon.

MICKTY MOUSE FILM THIS WTEK

Mickey Mouse and "Trouble in Toyland" are among the headliners at the Niles theater this week. Both come on the same program with 'Ah, Wilderness," famous Eugene O'Neill play which has Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore and a distinguished cast. "Trouble in Toyland" is something different in juvenile movies, says William Helm, theater manager. The cast is made up of unusually young children, all of whom are in the "prodigy" class.

Other unusual bill of the week is Amateur Night which comes Saturday. Edward Everett Horton in "Your Uncle Dudley" is the other half of the program. Another installment of "Fighting Marines" is also scheduled Saturday.

Tonight sees James Cagney and Pat O'Brien in an exciting film "Ceiling Zero." As the title hints, the story is about airmen and their troubles. There is no Friday show this week. Amateur Night and Horton come on Saturday, "Ah, Wilderness" on Sunday and Monday, and Kay Francis follows on Wednesday and Thursday in the exciting story, "I Found Stella Parish."

In connection with this week's Amateur Night, Helm stresses the fact that the competition is growing very keen as the finals approach. A large supply of local talent is available for the program.

Knights Of Pythias Honor Memory Of Joseph David Norris

CENTERVILLE—At the regular meeting of the Centerville lodge, Knights of Pythias, on Thursday evening, the following resolution of condolence was drafted by a committee appointed for this purpose and adopted by the lodge:

"Centerville Lodge No. 170, Knights of Pythias: The Supreme Ruler of the universe has seen fit to remove from our midst our esteemed and beloved member Past Chancellor Joseph David Norris.

He was a charter member of Centerville Lodge, Knights of Pythias and for forty-five years has been a true and loyal Knight, —ever mindful of his obligation of friendship, charity and benevolence. Throughout Alameda county and even beyond its confines, he was honored and loved by all who knew him. His genial disposition, his loyalty to friends and country, his rugged honesty, caused him to win and hold friends in all walks of life, we feel that:

"He will awake and have some loving word to say,
Some kindly deed to do; for loving though
Was warp and woof of which his life was wrought.
He is not dead. Such should forever live
In boundless measure of the love they give.

"He was a good husband and father, a good citizen, friend, and neighbor. By this tribute we wish to convey to his family our feeling of great loss and our sincere sympathy for them in their hour of sorrow and commend them for consolation to HIM who does all things for the best.

"F. T. Dusterberry, M. P. Mathiesen, E. M. Stevenson, committee."

Masonic Home News

JAMES H. HEATH

Joseph Travelli, 52 years a Mason, was presented a fifty year membership button, Superintendent Harman, representing the grand lodge of California, at the request of Oakdale lodge No. 275, making the presentation. Remarks complimentary to Mr. Trevalli, who came to the Home in September, 1932, were made by Superintendent Hartman, who spoke of the great honor of becoming eligible for a button and saying that he had yet 13 years to go before being entitled to receive such a token.

At the close of the ceremony, Mr. Trevalli, who is held in high esteem, received the hearty congratulations from all present.

The recipient of the button was made a Mason in North Star lodge No. 91, at Fort Jones, Siskyu county, in 1883, and had the honor of being installed as Worshipful Master that same year. In 1910 he demitted to the Oakdale lodge, which is sponsoring his membership in the Home. He is a member of Mount Shasta commandry, K. T. No. 32 at Yreka, Siskyou county, and of Cyrus Royal Arch chapter, No. 15, at Yreka. He is also a Shriner, a member of Isalm Temple, San Francisco. For more than 50 years he has been an Odd Fellow, his affiliation being with Fort Jones lodge No. 115. The plan of giving out fifty year gold buttons was adopted by the grand lodge in 1929, the number having reached a total of over 1100. Ninetysix presentations were made during the grand lodge year of 1935. The Masonic Home has a generous number who are wearing the token.

TROUPERS ENTERTAIN

The Home was favored, the evening of February 14, with an entertainment staged by the Tulip Troupers, Oakland Chapter of the Eastern Star, No. 140, under direction of Mrs. Maude E. Peterson. Music was furnished with a three-member orchestra brought out from Oakland by the live wire entertainers.

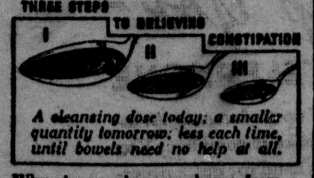
DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:



A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use a liquid laxative.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

CHRISTIANS OBSERVE LENT

The annual Lenten season, now eight days old, is an annual period in which Christians practice self-denial, abstaining from meat and worldly pleasures, for the cleansing of their bodies and the good of their souls. All are joyous when Lent ends with Easter Sunday. Those who carry thru such a period of forty days' semi-fasting find themselves more healthy, purer in mind and possessing stronger courage to fight life's battles.

The early Christians were punctilious in observance of Lent, abstaining from meat when in those days gluttony was normal for those who who could afford to be gluttons.

Lent likewise is a season of special penitence. Included in Lent are the forty week days preceding Easter, the first being Ash Wednesday—observed last week. The six Sundays occurring are excluded from Lent and are called Sundays in (not of) Lent, for the reason that Sunday is always a feast.

In the Middle Ages when Lent was applied to other periods of fasting, the Spring fast was called Great Lent, or Clean Lent—the latter name alluding to the preceding confession and absolution.

NINETY CALIFORNIA TAXES

Many persons are surprised when they learn that 90 separate taxes are imposed in California by state, county, municipal and local political subdivisions, plus the many exactions by the federal government. We have the list, but it's so long, space limitations forbid complete reproduction in one issue. Perhaps we shall find space to publish the list in instalments. Every individual should be familiar with the taxes he pays. Don't fancy you are not paying them. Every tax affects all the population, directly or indirectly.

Facts about taxes Californians pay will be brought out at the tenth annual meeting of the California Taxpayers' Association to be held tomorrow in Los Angeles at the Biltmore Hotel, starting at 10 a. m.

TRIBUNE ISSUES YEAR BOOK

The Oakland Tribune's Year Book for 1936—off the press last week, gives a most impressive picture of developments in Alameda county. Lavishly illustrated and attractively printed, the Year Book covers a wide range of topics pertinent to the East Bay progress motif. The subect matter is entertaining and represents a vast amount of research, affording an accurate record and one worthy of preservation. An entire section is devoted to the San Francisco bay bridge. A relief map of East Bay territory is likely to be found framed or pinned to many walls. The Tribune can take justified pride in its Year Book.

AROUND the TOWNSHIP

C. E. Anderson, Centerville jeweler, has had a colorful life. Born in Butte county, he was a boy of eight when he started to learn the watchmaker's trade in his uncle's shop at Sacramento. After serving his apprenticeship there, he learned the machinist's trade, went to work for a railroad, became a fireman and later, an engineer. Not content with that, he went to sea as an oiler, passed engineer's examination.

Once master of three highly technical trades, Anderson did not allow himself to grow stale. For a number of years, he switched from one to another at will. In 1922, while back in the watch repairing business, a man brought to him an old Swiss watch with a highly engraved brass case. Tinkering with it, Anderson noticed an old repair number on it that seemed familiar. Checking back through his records, he discovered that it was the first watch he had repaired during his apprenticeship more than thirty years before. "I gave the man five dollars for it and I still have it," Anderson says. Older now, with a grown family, Anderson does not go adventuring. He keeps a cat and reads National Geographic magazines.

Last week, this newspaper failed to carry the final installment of "There's Always Another Year," the continued story by Martha Ostenso. It was our way of checking on the number of subscribers who read the serials. The fact that few protests came in, leads us to believe that either that particular story did not ring the bell, or people don't especially like fiction serials in their community newspapers. We are running the final installment this week and we plan to discontinue serials for the time being. What do our readers say?

Bright sunshine following the recent rains has caused flowering trees and shrubs around the township to burst into colorful bloom. Native and exotic plants are striving to outdo one another in striking displays. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Abrott, Third and H in Niles, opposite the Congregational church, are two Japanese magnolia trees of separate varieties, both in full bloom. One of orchid shade, the other of deeper tone, the trees have attracted many visitors. D. R. Rees, pharmacist, tooksome effective pictures.

The cat came back. During the height of the storm our office feline slipped out the door, was chased by a dog and went, we feared, completely out of our life. We mourned, for we felt it was worse than a scene from "Way Down East" or "Orphans in the Storm." A week later rains were still flooding the countryside. One morning Alice Quartaroli of the City of Florence restaurant, who lives two miles from Niles, entered her car and found a cat on the seat. He was gaunt and bedraggled. She drove him into town and to the restaurant, where he demonstrated a desire for food. She gave him a meal and then another and another—all on the house. Learning The Register was minus one cat, Mrs. Quartaroli presented her foundling—and it was THE cat. He was glad to get back. The matter of a name is still in suspense. Bernard Shaw doesn't fit, because the cat is now strictly carnivorous. We are considering "Traveler" — an obvious moniker, or "Thumber," because he knows how to get a free ride.

Jiffy Knit Sweater With Matching Hat

PATTERN No. 5512

Any four-to-eight-year-old will be warm as toast in this sweater and cap set. The sweater's a "jiffy" knit—just plain knitting combined with yoke and sleeves of easy lacy stitch, and finished almost before you know it. The cap done in a straight strip, gathered at the top, also includes these two stitches, adding a pert pompon for good measure. Choose a colorful yarn, and there'll be no "insisting" she wear it!

In pattern 5512 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown in sizes 4, 6 and 8 (all given in one pattern); an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Throw Me a Cable, Captain, and I'll Give You a Tow!

A man in search of a quiet holiday set out in a small sailing boat, his only equipment consisting of provisions and a wireless set. He sailed serenely for several days, until at last he sighted one of those liners which resemble small towns rather than ships, says the London Observer. The appearance of the little boat created excitement on board the liner, which slowed down.

The captain was wondering whether it was a matter of going to the rescue when the holiday maker moved to his transmitter and tapped out the message: "Is there anything I can do for you?"

Toys Are the Realities of World in Which Child Lives

Toys are to the child what work and tools and recreation are to adults. To a large degree, appropriate toys for the various age levels depend on the individual child; the toy should be just a little more advanced than the child's present stage of development, says Billie Teel Mettel in Hygeia.

The preschool child should be given playthings of an order not so plentiful in school, that will give him contact with nature, instruct him in simple handwork and exercise the large fundamental muscles. Imitative play becomes important at this time, and the laundry set, drawing paper and wooden garden tools are welcome and appropriate toy gifts.

If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffein may be to blame.

Isn't it worth while to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.

(CONCLUSION)

There was no one in the yard as she approached Roddy's house. Roddy and Steve, Silver knew, were cutting hay in the south field, almost a mile away. The whirr of the mower came faintly on the dead stillness of the later afternoon.

In the driveway, before the door of the big house, stood Roddy's car. As Silver passed it, she glanced into it and saw a large black suitcase lying across the seat. Could Corinne possibly be planning to go somewhere with the storm coming on?

She flung open the kitchen door and almost collided with Corinne —hatted and gloved, and wearing a tailored dark silk dress suitable for traveling. In one hand she carried a small leather case and her purse. Under her other arm snuggled Macbeth, her red Pomeranian. These details Silver took in with alarmed comprehension.

"Where in the world are you going, Corinne?" she asked. "Don't you see there's a storm coming up?"

Corinne laughed nonchalantly, although her eyes flamed in reckless defiance. "I haven't time to tell you," she replied. "I have to hurry. . . . What are you doing? Let me go!"

"For God's sake, Corinne!" Silver panted. "Have you lost your senses completely?"

"Take your hands off me!" Corinne burst out. She had gone white with fury as she struggled to release herself.

Silver dropped Corinne's arms and stepped back from her, aghast and bewildered. "Are you going away with Gerald Lucas?" she demanded.

"How dare you interfere with me?" Corinne stammered, with something of her old imperious manner, which was to Silver merely pathetic now. "You must be crazy—"

"It's you who are crazy," Silver interrupted coldly.

Corinne seemed to regain control of herself. "Think what you like," she said in a calmer tone. "I have never cared much about what you think of me, anyhow." She pushed back her sleeve with a trembling hand and glanced at her watch. "All I want now is to get away. That's all I've wanted from the first day I came here. I've left a note telling Roddy he can find the car in front of Haber's store. Let me pass, please!"

Silver did not move from her place before the door. "I can't let you go—like this."

"Have your own way, then," Corinne told her. "I'll go out by the front door."

Silver burst suddenly into tears and clung to Corinne.

"Corrie—I implore you! Don't do this to yourself! I know what life with Gerald will be. I've seen enough of it—I've been through it. Your life will be ruined. Corinne, darling—please—please—please—I won't let you go!"

Silver caught her arm, but Corinne, with a sharp little jerk of her body, disengaged herself. Her small, piquant face was frozen with determination.

"I tell you—I don't care!" she cried desperately. Her head was proud and high. "I can't let him go away alone. I realized that last night when he told me he would have to leave. I love him—and he loves me." For an appalling moment her face became almost shrewish. "If I don't like the way Gerald lives, perhaps I can make something worth while out of him—and I couldn't do that for Roddy Willard!"

Before Silver could reach her, Corinne had darted into the front room and out of the door. Silver ran after her sobbing, pleading, clutching at her in despair, but Corinne, in stony, inexorable silence, climbed into the car and drove off.

Silver looked wildly after her, and stood for a moment with her hand pressed frantically against her mouth. She was vaguely aware that it had grown much darker, that the earth seemed enclosed in an airless, suffocating sphere. Then she stamped her foot and brushed the tears impatiently from her eyes.

"Go, then—you d—n little idiot!" she said aloud as she saw the car pass through the gateway and gather speed in the open road.

Suddenly there came into her mind the clamoring necessity of finding Roddy. The distance to the hayfield seemed immeasurable as she went running, stumbling, plunging to no avail again and again over the entangling meshes of grass, over the familiar and the treacherous ruts of a fallow field which was wavering strangely now with livid patches of shadow. She paused and glanced over her shoulder to reassure herself that she had come at least half way, when there came a sound that was a shrill, demoniacal whine, followed by a roar that stunned all thought.

Then rain came.

The rain, the rain, the blessed rain! Silver threw her arms wide and laughed in sheer pagan joy as the rich, drowning flood of it descended upon her. It washed away all drouth and hunger and defeat; it washed all error from the human heart and wrong thinking from the human mind.

The rain ceased as suddenly as it had begun. Presently, from the direction of the Willard hill, Silver saw a dark shape plunging toward her. It was Roddy.

"What the devil are you doing out here?" he demanded as he came within speaking distance.

"I started out to find you—when the rain came," she replied haltingly.

"We hit for the house when we saw it coming," he said.

"You've been home—you've found Corinne's letter?" she asked.

"I found it," he replied in a clipped tone.

"I tried to stop her, Roddy. I fought with her—but I couldn't do anything. Then I ran—to get you—so that you could go after her—before it was too late."

Roddy smiled bitterly. "H—l, they've gone to Mexico!" he said. "That's too far away for me."

"You're going to let her go?"

"It isn't as bad as it looks, kid," he said slowly. "Corinne really left me—months ago. But—come along. Steve is out looking for you, and Phronie is having fits because you're not in the house."

He put his arm about her gently and they walked in silence toward the house. To the eastward, lightning strode across the sky, and all about them the air quaked with thunder.

"Don't you think too much about this, Silver," Roddy said steadily as they went across the field. "I'm giving Corinne a chance to live the life she wants to live. I've known what she wanted—but I've never been able to give it to her. I was a d—d fool, I guess. But there's something I want to tell you—Corinne is really in love with Lucas. I have suspected it all along, but when she came home last night—there was something about her—a sort of glory in her face that I've never seen before. I asked her about Lucas and she told me she loved him. There wasn't anything I could do about it, kid. I told her she could go when she felt like it."

Silver's heart beat so rapidly that she could make no reply. They made their way across the field until they came parallel with Roddy's experimental tract of corn. The sky was lifting now as though the lid were being raised from a casket of glowing jewels. Green and gold and blue, in a cleansed and hallowed world—it cast over the heart a spell of awe and wonder.

Silver, her eyes upon the field, thought of Corinne. "How could she go away from this Roddy—and take a chance on the life—"

Roddy smiled down at her. "Life's a gamble—wherever you live it, Silver," he said. "It's when you live it with someone you love that makes the difference."

He took her shoulders in his hands, and turned her about and looked through almost a year of frustration, despair and defeat—into the serenity of Silver's eyes.

And across his shoulder, Silver saw a rainbow above the land.
